1. The credit of 400,000,000 rubles given by the USSR to Poland in 1950 is a loan outside the framework of the Council for Mutual Economic Aid. It was granted for the purchase from the USSR of the following equipment and it may not be used for purchases from capitalistic countries:
 - a. Kombyn coal mining machines of Soviet design
 - b. Oil well boring equipment and prospecting equipment
 - c. Shipbuilding materials and machinery
2. There was no mention in the agreement about adapting Polish industry to the Soviet pattern, but the types of equipment to be purchased from the USSR indicate some conformity in requirements.
3. The loan is to be paid through coal and textile deliveries and the transport of Soviet cargoes in Polish ships.
